

American Redstart

The American Redstart is common and represents the need to follow Partner in Flight's call to "Keep Common Birds Common." The goal is to work to maintain its populations so that it never appears on any species lists of concern.

Take Action

Join Partners in Flight in its work to "Keep Common Birds Common." Learn more at partnersinflight.org

A photograph of an American Redstart bird perched on a thin, light-colored branch. The bird has a black head and back, a bright orange-red breast, and a white belly. Its wings and tail have black and orange-red markings. The background is a soft-focus green, suggesting foliage.

Year <sup>of</sup> the Bird
World Migratory Bird Day

Environment
for the Americas

www.migratorybirdday.org #BIRDDAY

© Derek Bakken